

GUIDELINES FOR THE PREPARATION OF REPORTS BY MEMBER STATES ON THE APPLICATION OF THE 1974 RECOMMENDATION CONCERNING EDUCATION FOR INTERNATIONAL UNDERSTANDING, CO-OPERATION AND PEACE AND EDUCATION RELATING TO HUMAN RIGHTS AND FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOMS

I. Introduction

A. About the 1974 Recommendation

1. UNESCO's *1974 Recommendation concerning Education for International Understanding, Co-operation and Peace and Education relating to Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms*¹ (the "1974 Recommendation") aims to promote international education and world peace through understanding, solidarity and cooperation. It was adopted on 19 November 1974 by the General Conference of UNESCO at its 18th session.

2. The 1974 Recommendation applies to formal, non-formal and informal education and to all levels, from pre-primary to tertiary and adult education and lifelong learning. The General Conference recommended "that Member States should apply" the provisions included in the 1974 Recommendation "by taking whatever legislative or other steps" that provide institutional (e.g. policies and legal frameworks) and pedagogical (e.g. curricula, teacher training, educational materials, equipment, and student assessment) support for its implementation, based on the "objectives", referred to in paragraph 4 of the 1974 Recommendation, "regarded as major guiding principles of education policy" including: an international dimension and a global perspective on education, cultural diversity, interdependence, communication, rights and responsibilities, international solidarity and cooperation, and problem solving.

3. Today, the principles of the 1974 Recommendation apply equally well to Education for Sustainable Development (ESD) and to Global Citizenship Education (GCED) and therefore represent a powerful tool for promoting the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and in particular SDG Target 4.7 on the promotion of sustainable development and global citizenship through education, Target 12.8 on access to information on sustainable development and Target 13.3 on climate change education.

4. The General Conference in its 39th session recommended the use of the 1974 Recommendation reporting process to support the implementation and monitoring of Target 4.7 of Sustainable Development Goal 4 (39 C/Resolution 79). The UNESCO Executive Board at its 209th session approved the use of the current guidelines for both the monitoring of the 1974 Recommendation and the collection of data needed for the following global SDG indicator for which UNESCO is custodian (209 EX/Decision 18.II):

4.7.1, 12.8.1 and 13.3.1: The extent to which (i) global citizenship education and (ii) education for sustainable development are mainstreamed in (a) national education policies; (b) curricula; (c) teacher education and (d) student assessment.

5. Questions marked with an asterisk (*) will be used in the calculation of the respective indicators (Table 1). As approved by the Inter-Agency and Expert Group on the SDG Indicators, the indicators will be calculated for primary and secondary education only.

B. Reporting obligations

6. The General Conference, at its 18th session, when adopting the 1974 Recommendation recommended “that Member States submit [...] reports concerning the action taken by them in pursuance of this recommendation”. Moreover, in accordance with Article VIII of UNESCO’s Constitution “Each Member State shall submit to the Organization [...] reports [...] on the action taken upon the recommendations and conventions referred to in Article IV, paragraph 4.”

7. Thus, all UNESCO Member States are expected to report on the steps they have taken to implement the 1974 Recommendation preferably by completing the following questionnaire. Such reporting takes place every four years.

II. Guidelines for completion of the questionnaire

8. This questionnaire and its accompanying guidelines are addressed to Ministers responsible for relations with UNESCO. The questionnaire is typically completed by Ministries of Education and other government authorities responsible for education. Responses should cover, as far as possible, education at all levels of government, including sub-national levels where applicable as well as education outside the government sector.

9. National respondents are encouraged to consult widely both within, across and beyond government, including with Ministries of Environment, with national human rights institutions, the education sector, civil society partners and others, as necessary, to gather the information needed to complete the questionnaire.

10. Responses to the seventh consultation should cover:

- (i) the time period 2017-2020;
- (ii) education at all levels of formal education from pre-primary to tertiary education as well as non-formal education;
- (iii) all levels of government that have responsibility for education within the country; and
- (iv) where possible, education outside the government sector.

11. To assist countries in responding to this questionnaire, UNESCO has developed the following set of global citizenship education and education for sustainable development themes. The list is based on a review of current common practices in many countries as well as a review of relevant literature. While the terms ESD and GCED may be used differently in some countries, the list of themes typically captures what are seen as key elements of Target 4.7. Please refer to the definitions of key terms in Section III before completing the questionnaire.

Term	Definition
Themes of global citizenship and education for sustainable development
1. Cultural diversity and tolerance	Education about and for diversity including language, ethnicity, race, religion as well as the development of tolerance, mutual respect and appreciation for cultural diversity. It includes intercultural and interreligious dialogue, understanding, solidarity and co-operation, and citizenship education.
2. Gender equality education	Education that addresses the wider issue of gender equality by promoting new attitudes and patterns of belief, transforming the way people think about traditional gender roles and helping to build long-term sustainable change. It examines how gender roles, activities, needs, opportunities, rights and entitlements affect men, women, girls and boys differently. It deals with the relationships between females and males, their access to and control of resources and the constraints they face relative to each other. It respects the rights of all learners – women, men, boys and girls – equally and gives equal access to learning opportunities, resources and protections. All learners benefit from and are treated in education equally without the limitations set by stereotypes, rigid gender roles and prejudices. It covers gender-based equal opportunities, gender equality and justice, and gender roles, identity and stereotypes.
3. Human rights education	Education that promotes universal respect for and observance of all human rights and fundamental freedoms and thus contributes, inter alia, to the prevention of human rights violations and abuses by providing persons with knowledge, skills and understanding and developing their attitudes and behaviours, to empower them to contribute to the building and promotion of a universal culture of human rights. It includes equality and non-discrimination, human rights values, dignity, justice, inclusion and participation and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms.
4. Peace and non-violence	Education about peace and peace-building, mediation, conflict prevention and resolution, non-violence, reconciliation and living together peacefully. It includes advocating for friendly relations among peoples and nations, challenging negative stereotypes, promoting peaceful solutions, learning to live together and preventing violent extremism and other forms of violence including bullying.
5. Climate change education	Education to help people, in particular youth, understand, address, mitigate, and adapt to the impacts of climate change. It encourages changes in attitudes and behaviours needed to put the world on a more sustainable development path, and build a new generation of climate change-aware citizens. It covers various responses to climate change including mitigation, adaptation, impact reduction and early warning.
6. Environmental sustainability	Education about responsible interactions with the environment to avoid depletion or degradation and to promote environmental quality and health. It includes, caring for the planet and protecting nature, environmental justice, biodiversity and water.
7. Human survival and well-being	Education that promotes social well-being and harmony including in future generations due to healthy environmental systems. It includes health of the planet and environment related to human well-being, disaster risk reduction and sustainable cities and communities.

8. Sustainable consumption and production	Education on the use and production of resources, products and services that have a minimal adverse impact on the environment. Types of education
Adult education	Education specifically targeted at individuals who are regarded as adults by their society to improve their technical or professional qualifications, further develop their abilities, enrich their knowledge with the purpose to complete a level of formal education, or to acquire, refresh or update their knowledge, skills and competencies in a particular field.
Formal education	Education that is institutionalized, intentional and planned through public organizations and recognized private bodies which – in their totality – constitute the formal education system of a country. Formal education programmes are recognized by the relevant national or sub-national education authorities. Formal education consists mostly of initial education (e.g., pre-primary, primary, secondary and tertiary education).
Non-formal education	Education that is an addition, alternative and/or a complement to formal education within the process of the lifelong learning of individuals. It is often provided to guarantee the right of access to education for all. It caters to people of all ages but does not necessarily apply a continuous pathway-structure. It may be short in duration and/or low-intensity, and it is typically provided in the form of short courses, workshops or seminars. Non-formal education mostly leads to qualifications that are not

VI. Questionnaire

A. Laws and policies (preamble and paras 4 and 7 of the 1974 Recommendation)

A1a. Please describe any specific national or sub-national laws, legislation or legal framework(s) in your country that govern the promotion of global citizenship education (GCED) and/or education for sustainable development (ESD). Explain whether GCED and/or ESD themes² are mentioned explicitly or are inferred and what types or levels of education are covered.

Legal frameworks

Global citizenship education (GCED) is not explicitly mentioned in Australian laws, legislation or legal frameworks. However, GCED is inferred in several pieces of legislation that protect people from discrimination, uphold human rights and support the rights of international students.

Australia has a range of laws and legislation to protect and promote the diversity of our society. In Australia, it is unlawful to discriminate on the basis of a number of protected attributes including age, disability, race, sex, intersex status, gender identity and sexual orientation in certain areas of public life, including education and employment.

The Australian Human Rights Commission is Australia's national human rights institution. The Australian Human Rights Commission is an independent statutory authority, established under the Australian Human Rights Commission Act 1986. The Commission has a range of duties, functions and powers with respect to human rights, including undertaking inquiries, intervening in court proceedings, examining enactments and conducting educational programs and public awareness campaigns.

Australia's world-class international education sector is underpinned by legal protections for international students studying in Australia (ESOS Act 2000). The internationalisation of Australia's education system, particularly at the tertiary level, is driving global engagement and intercultural understanding among young Australians and their international counterparts.

A1b. Please provide the full names of any laws, legislation or legal frameworks referred to in A1a and, where possible, web links to relevant documents.

Strategic frameworks

GCED is inferred by the Alice Springs (Mparntwe) Declaration 2019 and the National Strategy for International Education 2015. Both strategic documents refer to the idea of global citizenship among students.

Alice Springs (Mparntwe) Education Declaration (2019)

This Declaration sets out our vision for education in Australia and our commitment to improving educational outcomes for young Australians. "The curriculum supports students to become responsible local and global members of the community in an interconnected world and to engage with complex ethical issues and concepts such as sustainability" (p. 15). Full document found here: <https://www.dese.gov.au/alice-springs-mparntwe-education-declaration>.

National Strategy for International Education (2015)

The NSIE was developed to ensure Australia's international education sector meets the expectations of students, communities and industry around the world. The strategy recognises that international education offers more than just economic benefits and is an important tool for developing intercultural understanding and global awareness. “We equip students with the skills, knowledge and attitudes to be productive, globally aware citizens who can confidently respond to the challenges of tomorrow” (p.12). Full document found here: <https://nsie.dese.gov.au/>.

ESD is explicitly mentioned by the National Strategy for Ecologically Sustainable Development 1992 and inferred by the Australian Strategy for Nature 2019-2030.

National Strategy for Ecologically Sustainable Development (1992)

This strategy includes a section on education and training (Chapter 26), which encourages the implementation of sustainable development principles into the education system.

- Objective 26.1: to incorporate Ecologically Sustainable Development principles and approaches into the curriculum, assessment and teaching programs of schools and higher education
- Objective 26.2: to develop and improve vocational education and training programs which incorporate Ecologically Sustainable Development principles, and which will give practical skills in achieving Ecologically Sustainable Development.

Full document found here: <https://www.environment.gov.au/about-us/esd/publications/national-esd-strategy>.

Australian Strategy for Nature (2019-2030)

Australia's Strategy for Nature 2019-2030 is the overarching framework for all national, state and territory and local strategies, legislation, policies and actions that target nature. The strategy builds on previous and existing work and is underpinned by science. However, it also takes an approach that is new and very different from that taken previously. It moves away from a purely protection-based approach and strives to incorporate adaptation, resilience and natural resource management in our cities, rural and natural environments, on land and at sea. See Goal 3:

Share and Build Knowledge:

- Objective 10: Increase knowledge about nature to make better decisions
- Objective 11: Share and use information effectively

B1a. Please describe in which ways GCED and ESD are mainstreamed in school curricula. Indicate whether topics are taught as standalone subjects or are integrated into the curricula of other subjects. Explain whether GCED and/or ESD themes⁴ are mentioned explicitly or are inferred and what types or levels of education are covered.

Curriculum

The Australian Curriculum (Foundation to Year 10) is three-dimensional, incorporating general capabilities, cross-curriculum priorities and learning areas. The following sections are those related to Education for Sustainable Development and Global Citizenship Education.

⁴ See the schema described in paragraph 11 of Section II of these guidelines.

B1b. Please provide examples of curricula in which GCED and/or ESD are mainstreamed and, where possible, web links to relevant documents.

General Capabilities

Ethical Understanding: As cultural, social, environmental and technological changes transform the world, the demands placed on learners and education systems are changing. Technologies bring local and distant communities into classrooms, exposing students to knowledge and global concerns as never before. Complex issues require responses that take account of ethical considerations such as human rights and responsibilities, animal rights, environmental issues and global justice.

Intercultural Understanding: In the Australian Curriculum, students develop intercultural understanding as they learn to value their own cultures, languages and beliefs, and those of others. They come to understand how personal, group and national identities are shaped, and the variable and changing nature of culture. Intercultural understanding involves students learning about and engaging with diverse cultures in ways that recognise commonalities and differences, create connections with others and cultivate mutual respect.

Intercultural understanding is an essential part of living with others in the diverse world of the twenty-first century. It assists young people to become responsible local and global citizens, equipped through their education for living and working together in an interconnected world.

Further details can be found here: <https://www.australiancurriculum.edu.au/f-10-curriculum/general-capabilities/>.

Cross-curriculum Priorities

Sustainability: The Australian Curriculum places emphasis on Sustainability as a priority for study that connects and relates relevant aspects of content across learning areas and subjects.

Cross-curriculum learning is fundamental to:

- understanding the ways social, economic and environmental systems interact to support and maintain human life
- appreciating and respecting the diversity of views and values that influence sustainable development
- participating critically and acting creatively in determining more sustainable ways of living.

Asia and Australia's Engagement with Asia: Australia is increasingly looking to Asia strategically, politically and culturally as well as economically. Correspondingly, Asia literacy is going to be a key requirement of our young people, as Australia seeks to strengthen its ties in the Asia region and be an effective contributor to the wellbeing of the region as a whole. For this, young people will need broad insight into the histories of the countries of the Asia region, including their shared history with Australia, its complex and diverse cultures and an understanding of the contemporary challenges and opportunities that exist for the region. By knowing something of Asian societies, cultures, beliefs and environments, they will deepen their intercultural understanding, enrich their own lives and increase the likelihood of successful participation in the 'Asian century', for themselves and Australia as a whole.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Histories and Cultures: The Australian Curriculum sets consistent national standards to improve learning outcomes for all young Australians. ACARA acknowledges the gap in learning outcomes between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students and their non-Indigenous peers. It recognises the need for the Australian Curriculum to provide every opportunity possible to 'close the gap'. Therefore, the Australian Curriculum is working towards addressing two distinct needs in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander education:

- that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students are able to see themselves, their identities and their cultures reflected in the curriculum of each of the learning areas, can fully participate in the curriculum and can build their self-esteem

- that the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Histories and Cultures cross-curriculum priority is designed for all students to engage in reconciliation, respect and recognition of the world's oldest continuous living cultures.

Further details can be found here: <https://www.australiancurriculum.edu.au/f-10-curriculum/cross-curriculum-priorities/>

Learning Areas

Humanities and Social Sciences (Geography): The humanities and social sciences are the study of human behaviour and interaction in social, cultural, environmental, economic and political contexts. In the Australian Curriculum, Geography aims to ensure that students develop:

- a sense of wonder, curiosity and respect about places, people, cultures and environments throughout the world
- a deep geographical knowledge of their own locality, Australia, the Asia region and the world
- the ability to think geographically, using geographical concepts
- the capacity to be competent, critical and creative users of geographical inquiry methods and skills
- as informed, responsible and active citizens who can contribute to the development of an environmentally and economically sustainable, and socially just world.

Languages: The Australian Curriculum Languages component is designed to enable all students in Australia to learn a language in addition to English. The Australian Curriculum: Languages recognises that students bring their own linguistic and cultural background to their learning, whether this is English or the target language or various combinations of languages. The organisation of the curriculum addresses learner background in the target language by providing a number of pathways and entry points of study to cater for background language learners, first language learners and second language learners.

C1a. Please describe in which ways GCED and ESD are mainstreamed in initial training and in continuing professional development of teachers, trainers and educators. Indicate whether all teachers, trainers and educators or only some are required to receive training to teach GCED and/or ESD.

Teacher training and professional development

GCED and ESD are incorporated into Australia's Professional Standards for Teachers, ensuring that Australian teachers are equipped to teach the national curriculum and support diverse student cohorts. Several factors of the standards focus on cultural competency and awareness. For example, Standard 1: Know students and how they learn, includes the following focus areas:

- Focus Area 1.3 - Students with diverse linguistic, cultural, religious and socioeconomic backgrounds
- Focus Area 1.4 - Strategies for teaching Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students

Further details can be found here: <https://www.aitsl.edu.au/teach/standards>

For ongoing professional development of teachers, the Australian Institute for Teaching and School Leadership (AITSL) has developed a range of resources that are freely available for teachers. These include a suite of Illustrations of Practice, which deliver practical advice on implementing innovative teaching methods. Some examples of these are:

- Integrating science and culture
- Respecting local culture, history and language
- Sustainable cities
- Energy efficiency
- Building compassion for the natural world

C1b. Please provide examples of teacher training policies or curricula in which GCED and/or ESD are mainstreamed and, where possible, web links to relevant documents. If possible, include examples related to initial training and to continuing professional development.
